Gifts for Dogs

If your best friend has been extra good this year, you may be thinking he deserves a little gift for the holidays. We've sniffed around and found some pretty cool stuff we think your dog, or the dog person on your list will love. You can see all the items by clicking the link near the end of this story.

One of the more unusual items we found, for the dog that has everything is the Pup-Casso paint kit. Yes, it will allow your dog to unleash his artistic side, and perhaps leave you with an original work of art!

One handy little invention we found is the Auto Zip Line, for the overly enthusiastic car dog. It allows your pooch to run back and forth in the back seat to his heart's content, but keeps him from hopping up front where he can distract you. Road trips will never be the same!

For the people who cringe and the dogs who flee at the mere idea of nail clipping time, there's the high-tech Quickfinder® Clippers. This little gadget senses when you're in the safe (pain-free) zone of the nail, or in the quick (where it really hurts!). Red, yellow and green lights tell you to stop, proceed with caution or clip!

For the person who takes his or her dog everywhere, we love the E.B.D. Bag – which stands for Everything But the Dog. It holds everything you need when you are out and about with your dog. Looks good, too!

There are also plenty of fun holiday-themed gifts, like the Gingerbread House Puzzle, Bungee Holiday Lights, Plush Interactive Menorah and squeaky Gelt Toy! You can also hang a paw-shaped stocking, so Santa knows where to put the dog treats.

Speaking of treats, if you really want to get that tail wagging, pick up the Purina® Holiday Treat Pack – it has four favorite Purina® dog treat packs in a nice gift box. Yum!

If you want to feel extra good about giving your dog a gift, consider purchasing items from animal charities. Buying from these groups means the gifts benefit dogs that aren't lucky enough to have homes and loving owners. Read about these remarkable organizations in the story, Pet Charity Gift Shops.

Have a very safe and furry holiday!
